

VICTORY FIRST FOR JAPANESE

Sweep Through Barb Wire Traps, Forcing The Russian Advance To Retire.

NOGI'S GUNNERS CREATED FEAR

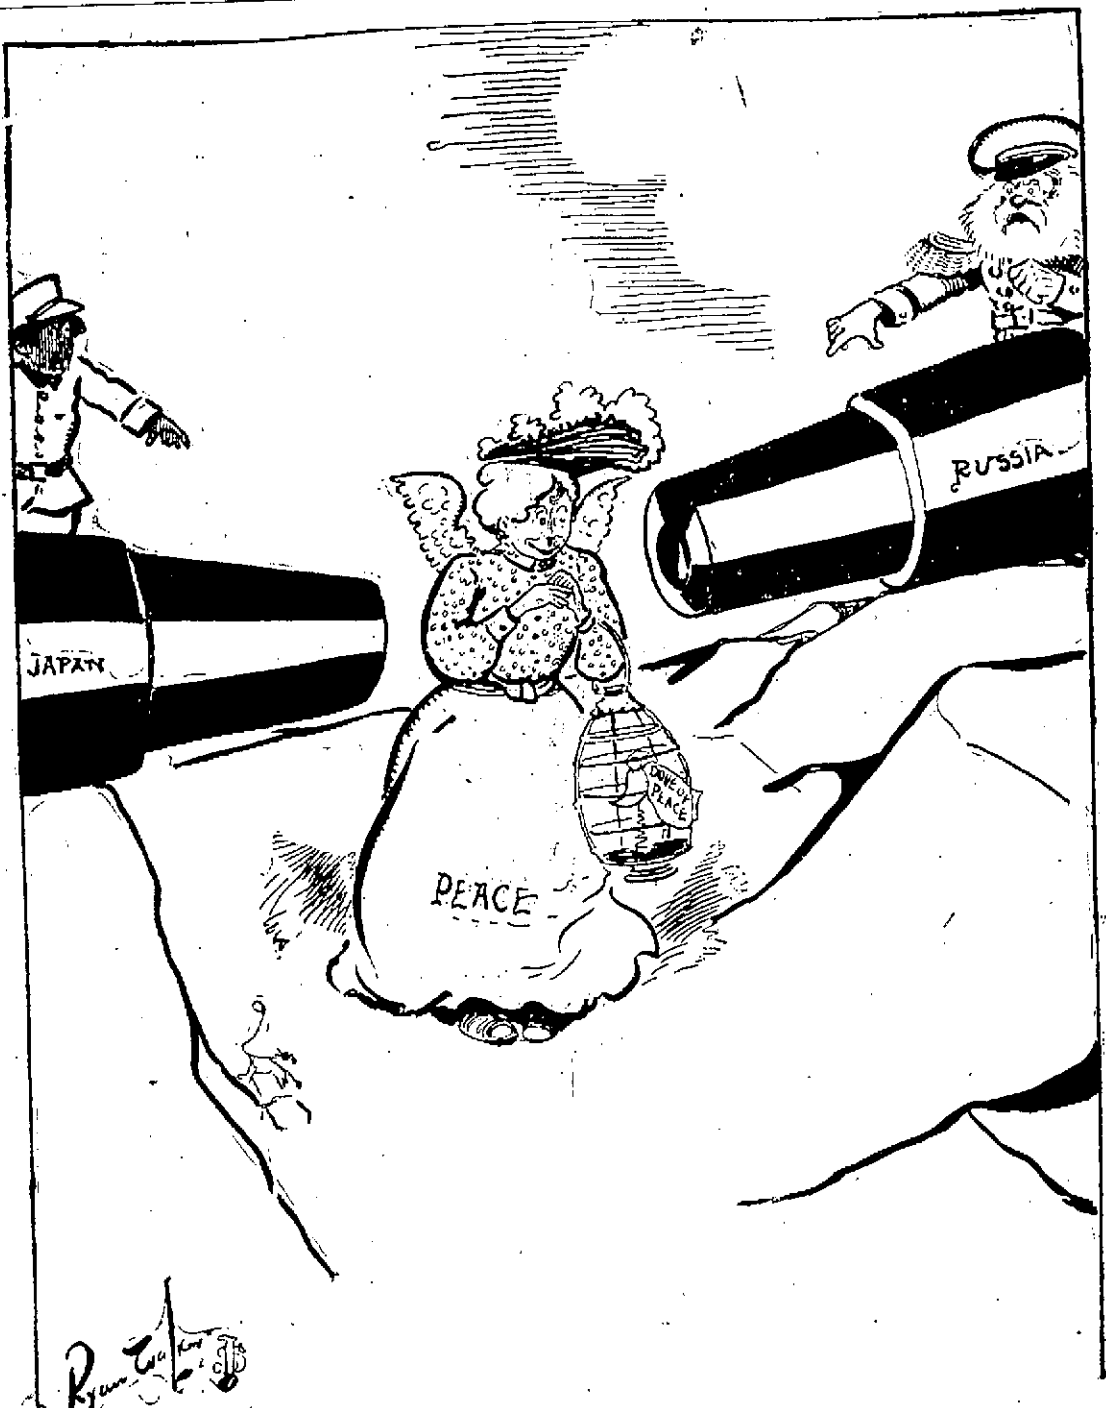

Consternation Seized Czar's Soldiers When It Was Learned These Men Were In The Attack--Percentage Of Dead Large.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-MORRIS.] St. Petersburg, Feb. 27.—Dislodged from all their advanced positions, Gen. Kourapatkin's troops on the left flank are now engaged in a life-and-death struggle to hold their main defenses. When Gen. Kourapatkin sent the latest dispatch that has been made public the Japanese had swept through all the barbed wire entanglements in their path, had forced the Russians to retire and were assaulting the passes that were held by the Russians. Already the casualties had been tremendous, the proportion of dead to the wounded being greater than in any other battle of the war. Apparently Gen. Nogi's gunners who destroyed Port Arthur's defenses, were with the Japanese columns, and this fact seemed to strike terror into Russian breasts, although the men did not give way till overwhelmed by sheer force of superior legions. Crucial Test of Strength. Da pass will probably be the spot where the crucial test of strength between the combatants on the east wing will be made. The fighting now going on is beyond Da pass, fifty miles southeast of Mukden. The advantage thus far is on the side of the Japanese, though at heavy cost. From advances from the front it is difficult to say how severe the losses have been or how decisive the Russian reverse, and whether the Japanese are likely to attempt to drive in the Russian left much further. Japs Outgeneral Russians. Gen. Kourapatkin evidently has been trying to establish his left flank far in advance to command the crossings of the Taitse river, the operation

ALL NIGHT SESSION SOON AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

The Last Week Of Work In Congress Was Ushered In Today--Closing Hours Crowded.

Washington, Feb. 27.—At the beginning of the last week of the present session only one of the regular appropriation bills has been acted on by congress and approved by the president. This is the legislative, executive and judicial bill. Six other supply bills have passed both houses and are in conference. With only five days of the session left the senate still has seven of the most important appropriation bills to consider in whole or in part. Of the seven the naval and the Indian bills have been partly read and some features of the naval bill have been discussed. Senators generally appreciate that the task of completing consideration of all these measures before the close of the session at 12 o'clock next Saturday is gigantic but none of them doubts that it will be accomplished. In order to do all that is requisite it will be necessary greatly to prolong the daily sittings and it is the present expectation that the hour of convening each day will be fixed at 10 o'clock and that the daily sessions will be extended considerably beyond the usual hour of adjourning. All-night sessions are probable the last few days of the week. Success Before the House. The house enters on the last week of the fifty-eighth congress without indication of serious difficulty of completing the legislative programme. Speaker Cannon predicts that unless there need be no protracted night sessions. However, tradition foretells the usual all-night session, which ushers in the last day of the congress. This session, which is broken up by recesses in which conference committees prepare their final reports, is marked by levity and song. The week will begin with the sundry civil bill, as the topic of legislation. The general deficiency, the last of the supply measures, is nearly ready for consideration. Conference reports to be handled include the statehood bill, the Panama canal legislation and the appropriations bill still unfinished, in all of which there are differences between the two houses. SEA LEVEL CANAL. Report to Panama Commission Approves Plan for Great Waterway. Washington, Feb. 27.—Construction of the isthmian canal at sea level is the recommendation made by the engineering committee of the isthmian canal commission in a report. The committee is composed of Commissioners Burr, Parsons and Davis, and their recommendations are the first definite engineering plans suggested for the work. The report declares that American steam shovels have accomplished so much work in shorter time and at lower cost than expected that the construction will occupy only from ten to twelve years. The principal recommendations are summed up in the following resolution: "This committee approves and recommends for adoption by the commission a plan for a sea level canal, with a bottom width of 150 feet and a minimum depth of water of thirty-five feet, and with twin tidal locks at Miraflores, whose usable dimensions shall be 1,000 feet long and 100 feet wide, at a total estimated cost of $220,000,000. Such estimate includes an allowance for administration, engineering, sanitation and contingencies, amounting to $38,450,000, but without allowance for interest during construction, expense of zone government and collateral costs, and water supply, sewers or paving of Panama or Colon, which last items are to be repaid by inhabitants of those cities." River and Harbor Bill. Washington, Feb. 27.—The river and harbor appropriation bill was under consideration at two meetings of the senate committee on commerce. The committee is considering the senate amendments to the house bill and thus far nearly all of those proposed have been adopted. This will mean an increase of more than $10,000,000 over the total of the bill as passed by the house. The total loss of life in the anthracite coal mines of Lackawanna county, Pennsylvania, in 1904, was 137, against 121 in 1903, when the output was much larger.

SENATE VOTING SWAYNE MATTER

Florida Federal Judge Is Being Put on the Gridiron Today at Washington. [SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-MORRIS.] Washington, Feb. 27.—The senate at ten this morning began voting on the Swaine impeachment case. On one charge that he collected expenses at the rate of ten dollars a day, the senate adjourned him "not guilty." Later, on articles 2 to 3, including the charge of using a private car, the vote was "not guilty." Finally with the vote of "not guilty" on article 12, a resolution was immediately adopted, declaring Swaine acquitted and the senate as a court of impeachment adjourned.

NEXT DUAL MEET COMES MARCH 18

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Feb. 27.—Chicago and Wisconsin will meet in a second dual track athletic meet in Madison March 18 and it is expected that enough changes in advantage will be effected by that time to enable the Badgers to win from the Maroons. Schneider, the crack Wisconsin hurdler, is expected to get his studies in shape to get the faculty to remove the ban against him and he will doubtless take points if allowed to compete. Members of the team blame their lack of familiarity with the Chicago track for their failure to win the distance runs. Kiesel and Captain Breckreutz declare they will not allow Lightbody to run away from them in Madison. These changes would be sufficient to change the result of the meet from that of Saturday night. Still more talk is heard to the effect that Wisconsin baseball players joined forbidden teams during the last summer vacation. The faculty is quietly investigating. It is said that Perry, the Badger catcher, is having a joke at the expense of Prof. C. S. Slichter, the faculty supervisor of athletics. Perry asked permission to play a few games on his home town team, Rice Lake, last summer and Slichter refused. He recently complimented Perry in a meeting of the board of athletic directors. It is said that the joke arises from the fact that Perry played notwithstanding the refusal of Slichter. The university closed early last summer on account of the jubilee celebration and some baseball players joined teams before the conference committee took a determined stand against it. They now say they knew nothing of the rule and were never notified.

PANIC DURING CHURCH SERVICE

Women and Children Are Hurt in a Nebraska Fire. Norfolk, Neb., Feb. 27.—A panic was caused by a fire which broke out in the Catholic church in this city during services Sunday. Eight hundred worshippers, mostly women and children, were in the church when the flames burst through the floor and there was a rush for the exits. The priest attempted to quiet the audience, but did not succeed in doing so until several women had fainted and a number of children were injured, none fatally. The financial loss was not great.

QUARLES' NAME IS WITHDRAWN

Wisconsin Senator Calls President's Attention to Present Ineligibility for Federal Judgeship. Washington, Feb. 27.—President Roosevelt will withdraw the nomination of Senator J. V. Quarles of Wisconsin to be United States district judge in that state. This action will be taken at the request of Senator Quarles himself, who called the president's attention to the second paragraph, sixth section of the first article of the constitution, which prevents the appointment of a member of congress to an office created, or the emoluments of which were increased, during his term in congress. Since Mr. Quarles became a member of the senate the Hoar bill, providing among other things for increasing the salary of United States district judges from $5,000 to $6,000 per year, has been enacted into law. It is admitted that Quarles can legally be appointed, and with propriety, to the Wisconsin judgeship after the expiration of his term as senator on March 4. This plan doubtless will be followed out. There is no criticism of the president for his action, most people believing that he forgot the constitutional prohibition against it. Senator Spooner undoubtedly knew of the president's intention to appoint Quarles, but it is not believed he knew it was contemplated before March 4, as he is such a stickler upon constitutional matters that he would have reminded the president of the situation that would arise under the present circumstances.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

Clarksburg, W. Va., had two murders yesterday. John Jarrett, colored, being shot and killed by William Taylor, also colored in a quarrel over a game of cards, and Joseph Cippie being shot in a fight between several Italians in a clubroom. John F. Keefe and Charles H. Gretsinger, employed in the shipping department of the Jordan-Marsh company in Boston, were arrested yesterday charged with the larceny of $50,000. It is claimed that they, with Dennis H. Carroll, arrested a week ago, and others were engaged in an extensive conspiracy to defraud the company. Governor Beckman of Kentucky last night denied a report that James Hargis had called on him and solicited his moral support in his trouble incident to indictments charging Hargis and his brother, Senator Elbert Hargis, and Sheriff Callahan of Breathitt county with procuring the assassination of Town Marshal Cockrill of Jackson. The brief of James H. Peabody in the Colorado governorship contest was filed with the legislative committee in Denver yesterday. It declares that Governor Adams has failed to disprove the charges made by the contestant and insists that fraud in the interest of Adams' election has been proved. Democratic members of the Missouri legislature, it was asserted at Jefferson City last night, will hold a caucus early this week to decide whether or not to throw sufficient democratic votes to Kerens to elect him United States senator over Niedringhaus.

POLICE JOIN THE STRIKERS TODAY

Reports From Warsaw Point to the Fact That Serious Trouble Is Still Ahead. [SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-MORRIS.] St. Petersburg, Feb. 27.—At Baku today armed Armenians invaded a factory and massacred forty-two Russian workmen who participated in the revolutionary movement. In a fight on Nowolipki street one soldier and one policeman were killed and ten policemen wounded.

HOLD TWO FOR $50,000 THEFT

Department Store Clerks Are Arrested for Alleged Conspiracy. Boston, Feb. 27.—Upon warrants charging them with the larceny of $50,000 from the Jordan-Marsh company's department store during the last five years, John R. Keefe, 34 years old, and Charles H. Gretsinger, 51 years old, have been arrested. The arrests were made in connection with what the police allege was an extensive conspiracy to defraud the company. Dennis H. Carroll, 31 years old, was arrested a few weeks ago in connection with the case. The prisoners were employed in the shipping department of the store and are alleged to have manipulated fraudulent bills for goods ostensibly purchased from reputable parties in such a manner that they secured checks for the amounts and divided the proceeds among themselves.

NOT BODY OF JOHN PAUL JONES

Coffin Found in Paris Shows Search Is in Right Locality. Paris, Feb. 27.—A body believed to be that of John Paul Jones, the American naval hero, turns out to be that of an Englishman who died two years before Jones, as shown by the name plate on the lead coffin. The deciphering of the name plate was done under Ambassador Porter's supervision, who will continue the search. The finding of the lead coffin shows that those buried in the Protestant cemetery about the time of Jones' death lie in the vicinity of the present excavations.

FIVE MILLIONS IN A FIRE LOSS

Illinois Central Freight Terminal District At New Orleans Burned.

GREAT ELEVATORS ARE RUINED

And Warehouses And Docks Destroyed--Eleven Blocks Still In Flames--But The Fire Is Now Under Control.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-MORRIS.] New Orleans, La., Feb. 27.—The loss by the fire which swept the Illinois Central freight terminals last night is now estimated at close to five million dollars. The flames are still sweeping the district for eleven blocks along the river front, but are under control. The company has announced that it will rebuild the docks. The response of the fire department was prompt, but owing to the fact that the terminals were not readily accessible, because of fences and tracks, the engines found difficulty in reaching the flames. In half an hour the fire covered two squares, the lower elevator was practically consumed, and the fire was sweeping with irresistible fury both up and down the river. As soon as it became known that the zone of the fire was the Stuyvesant docks, harbor tugs hastened to the wharves and vessels that were moored there were pulled out into the river. At the same time switch engines were rushed to the wharves and hundreds of box cars loaded with freight were drawn to points above the upper end of the terminals before the fire reached them. Hundreds more, however, were consumed. Great Elevator Burns. The river boats, the employees of the road, and the fire department concentrated all their energies in an effort to save the upper elevator between Austerlitz and Constantinople streets and to check the fire at that point. The fire, however, gradually worked past the point occupied by the elevator. Heroically the forces kept at work, but ultimately they were beaten, and the big steel structure, covered with corrugated iron, suddenly burst into flames at 10:30, and in half an hour was a complete wreck. Immense pieces of corrugated iron, torn from the sides of the upper elevator, were carried through the air as if they were feathers, and dropping in every direction constantly endangered the lives of firemen and spectators. Aside from the tremendous loss involved in the destruction of property the fire is a calamity to New Orleans in the temporary abatement of the immense export business of the Illinois Central, particularly in the matter of grain shipments. Warehouses Were Full. The two grain elevators were of the most modern construction, the upper one having a capacity of 1,000,000 bushels. Thousands of bales of cotton, several hundred thousand packages of sugar, great quantities of cotton seed oil and oil cake, lumber, and every conceivable variety of freight filled the warehouses and sheds. Practically all the export business handled by the Illinois Central was put aboard ships at these docks. The docks and improvements have been under construction for ten years past, elaborate extensions and immense investments having been made after the constitutional convention of 1893 made it possible for the road to invest permanently at this point. Precautions of No Avail. The fire was discovered shortly after

OVER A SCORE BLOWN UP IN WEST VIRGINIA MINE

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-MORRIS.] Bluefield, W. Va., Feb. 27.—As a result of an explosion in shaft No. 1 of the United States Coal and Coke Company at Wilcox Sunday twenty-three miners are supposed to have lost their lives, and it is possible that the number will exceed this. A large rescuing party is in the mines. It is barely possible, but not likely, that some of the remaining entombed miners will be rescued alive. The explosion was of terrific force and shattered glass windows a mile distant. Immediately after the shock great numbers of miners who were off duty, it being Sunday, rushed to the shaft to find clouds of smoke and dust gushing from its mouth. Mothers, children and others soon were weeping and pleading for the rescue of those entombed in the mine. Officials Aid in Rescue. The officials, including General Manager Reis, were soon on the ground, and the work of rescuing miners was directed by Mr. Reis. The dead miners are all Italians and Hungarians. The company usually works in this shaft about seventy-five miners, but Sunday the men were not all in and the small loss of lives can be attributed only to this fact. "The United States Coal and Coke Company, with principal offices in Pittsburgh, Pa., is a part of the United States Steel Corporation. The cause of the explosion has not yet been determined and since it is hardly probable any of those in the mine will be recovered alive the cause of the explosion may never be known. Scranton, Pa., Feb. 27.—Notwithstanding the fact that the production of anthracite coal in Lackawanna county was less last year than in the preceding year, the loss of life in connection with the industry increased in a manner that was appalling. Notwithstanding that there were additional inspectors, that more rigid precautions have, it is claimed, been inaugurated, the death toll increased and the army of widows and orphans caused by the accidents in the anthracite mines was reinforced more than ever last year. In 1902 for each life lost in Lackawanna county, when there were but two inspectors, there were 243,693 tons mined. In 1903, when the number of inspectors was doubled, this average fell to 101,838 tons, and in 1904 the average was further reduced to 147,934 tons for each life lost. The reports for the last year show that there were eighty-four fatalities from fall of roof and rock alone, while in the preceding year, with the greater output, the fatalities from these causes were sixty-four. The total lives lost in the mines of Lackawanna county in 1903 was 131, while in 1904, with its decreased output, there were 137 lives lost. The year 1905 will probably show a record yet worse. The first six weeks resulted in sixty-eight fatalities in the anthracite mines of the whole field. Former Governor Boutwell Died at Groton, Mass. WHAT IS MEANT BY THE COMMITTEE

SENATOR WHITEHEAD TALKS ON THE NEW STATE CAPITOL.

UPHOLDS THE COMMITTEE

The General Public Are Laboring Under a Misapprehension as to Facts.

Senator Whitehead was in his office this morning when asked for a statement of the facts relating to the new capitol matter, of which the newspapers of the past week have been full. The senator is a member of the joint committee on capitol and grounds, and it was before this committee that the hearing on Thursday last occurred. He stated that much misapprehension existed as to what the commission and the joint committee had attempted to do.

The facts are, as the senator gave them, that at the session two years ago, upon a communication received from the supreme court, through the governor, an act was passed providing for a commission to take the matter of enlarged quarters for the supreme court and the state library, in hand, and an appropriation of $100,000 for that purpose was made. The commission was also authorized to spend not to exceed $10,000 for architects. The commission consisted of the governor and six other persons appointed by him: Mr. Ingram, of Eau Claire, Mr. Van Cleave, of Macquette, and Mr. Reynolds, of Milwaukee, were eminent business men; Judges Marshall and Winslow, of the supreme court, and Mr. Chynoweth, of the Madison bar. These gentlemen were appointed by the governor to serve with him. In view of the fire which occurred about a year ago, the commission felt it necessary to widen the scope of its operations. They concluded that they had authority under the law to do so. The legislature intended that whatever addition was made to the capitol under this commission should be architecturally right, and should be so built that future enlargements of the capitol could be harmoniously added.

The commission followed the plan usually pursued by government and provided for a competition of architects. A program therefore was proposed and three architects were invited to participate in the competition. Mr. Cass Gilbert, formerly of St. Paul, now of New York, was the only architect without the state who received an invitation from the commission, while the firms of Perry & Class and H. C. Koch & Company were both from Milwaukee. The plans of the competitors, in due time, were submitted to the commission at Madison, and numbered as received, this being the only means of identifying them during their examination. The competing architects were invited to suggest the names of architects who would be satisfactory to them, in order that the commission might make a selection therefrom of a consulting architect to aid them in reaching a just decision. The lists furnished by Mr. Gilbert and by Perry & Class both contained the name of Mr. W. S. Eames, of St. Louis, president of the American Institute of Architects. The list of Koch & Company did not contain Mr. Eames' name, but, upon conference with that firm, the commission received assurance that Mr. Eames would be satisfactory to them. Mr. Eames was therefore chosen by the commission and received a letter of instructions, suggesting points on which they wished his judgment.

Mr. Eames performed his duty.

TOOK A STRAW VOTE.

Interesting Experiment in a Restaurant.

An advertising agent, representing a prominent New York magazine, while on a recent western trip, was dining one evening in a Pittsburg restaurant.

While waiting for his order he glanced over his newspaper and noticed the advertisement of a well-known dyspepsia preparation, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. As he himself was a regular user of the tablets, he began speculating as to how many of the other traveling men in the dining room were also friends of the popular remedy for indigestion.

He says: I counted twenty-three men at the tables and in the hotel office I took the trouble to interview and was surprised to learn that nine of the twenty-three made a practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal.

One of them told me he had suffered so much from stomach trouble that at one time he had been obliged to quit the road, but since using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets had been entirely free from indigestion, but he continued their use, especially while traveling, on account of irregularity in meals and because like all traveling men he was often obliged to eat what he could get and not always what he wanted.

Another, who looked the picture of health, said he never ate a meal without taking a Stuart Tablet afterward because he could eat what he pleased and when he pleased without fear of a sleepless night or any other trouble.

Still another used them because he was subject to gas on stomach, causing pressure on heart and lungs, shortness of breath and distress in chest, which he no longer experienced since using the tablets regularly.

Another claimed that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets was the only safe remedy he had ever found for sour stomach and acidity. He had formerly used common soda to relieve the trouble, but the tablets were much better and safer to use.

After smoking, drinking or other excesses which weaken the digestive organs, nothing restores the stomach to a healthy, wholesome condition so effectively as Stuart's Tablets.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain the natural digestive, pepsin, dextrose, which every weak stomach lacks, as well as nux, hyacinth and yellow parilla, and can be safely relied on as a radical cure for every form of poor digestion. Sold by druggists everywhere.

under his agreement with the commission and the award was made by the commission to the plan presented by Mr. Gilbert.

The report of the commission to the legislature on January 31st gave a full account of its proceedings and the method pursued in making this award. The commission's report shows the following:

"It is to be remembered that the plans submitted in such a competition are not final but merely tentative; that the successful competitor always expects to make such changes therein, even to the substitution of a practically new plan, as shall render it satisfactory to the employer. Hence, the result of such a competition is really the choice of an architect rather than the choice of a plan, and the commission desires to express its judgment that in case the legislature determines to proceed with the building of a new capitol or the reconstruction of the present building, justice to the successful competitor in this competition requires that he be employed as the architect."

This report was referred to the joint committee on capitol and grounds. After carefully weighing the matter the committee introduced a joint resolution ratifying the selection of Mr. Gilbert by the commission as the architect of the new or reconstructed capitol. There was nothing said in the resolution about the adoption of any particular plan, and the statement which is widely current that the plan now on exhibition in the capitol had been adopted by the commission is not warranted by anything in the report of the commission or in the resolution introduced by the joint committee. The only result of the competition has been the selection of an architect by the commission and the only thing contemplated in the resolution was the ratification of the choice of the commission and a direction to the commission that a contract be made with the successful competitor as the architect for a new or reconstructed capitol. The matter of the plan and cost of the capitol have been left entirely for the future consideration of the capitol commission and of the legislature entered into with him under a contract with the architect to be approved subject to the ratification of the legislature.

The committee, in so far as they have given the matter of a plan any consideration, have thought of a complete plan in accordance with which it adopted, a new building should be constructed, a section at a time as the actual needs of the state might require, saving and using the present structure as far and as long as possible. A matter of twenty years for such an enterprise, as to time consumed, is of small consequence to a state. The cost should be provided for from time to time as the legislature might find it necessary to add a section to the building so planned.

If a complete plan were adopted and the construction carried out as I have indicated, and as I am sure the commission and the committee have contemplated, it would not impose a heavy burden upon the people of the state all at once, nor need it result in the end in a larger expenditure than the state would be justified in making for a state capitol which is to stand, we may well hope, for many generations. The present capitol was thus built and paid for. The talk of the size of the capitol and the cost therefore are not now material, for they have not been brought to the attention of the legislature by the report of the capitol commission nor by the joint committee and no legislative action has been called for upon those important questions. The architect when chosen must follow the direction of the legislature both as to plan and cost.

CONDUCTED FIRST SERVICES SUNDAY

Rev. Herbert Chessell Boissier Assumed Rectory of Trinity Parish Yesterday.

Rev. Herbert Chessell Boissier conducted his first services as rector of Trinity parish yesterday. Rev. Boissier supplied the pulpit one Sunday after the departure of Father Richey and upon the call of the Trinity church vestry resigned the rectory of St. John's parish at Mauston, Wisconsin, where he has been the past several years. Many were in attendance at the services yesterday and a large congregation greeted Rev. Boissier at the late morning service.

Called by God

In a brief prelude to his morning sermon he said: "God through you has called me to take up the work of this parish and be priest among you. I have heeded his calling and come to you because I feel that God's voice has called me here and not man's or man's endeavors and plans. This being so, I come to you, not with any cunning tricks of man's device, not in any spirit of strength or ability, but merely as one whom in the weakness of any strength which he may possess leans entirely upon God's mercy and grace to turn that weakness—if he sees fit—into heavenly strength and ability for the rebuilding of his kingdom in this part of His vineyard. In this spirit then I come to you."

Co-operation

"In this same spirit I ask you to co-operate and work with me. Let us bear each other's burdens; rejoice in each other's strength; be charitable for each other's weaknesses. Doing thus and relying wholly and only on God for grace and help, strength and guidance, we shall press onward and forward to the mark of our prize, and high calling of God in Jesus Christ, our calling, our profession of being Christians, followers of our only Savior and Redeemer."

The Sermon

Rev. Boissier chose as the topic of his sermon, "The Reality of Invisible Things," taking for his text the 15th, 16th and 17th verses of the sixth chapter of second Kings: "When the servant of the man of God was risen early and gone forth, behold an host compassed the city, both with horses and chariots. And his servant said unto him, 'Alas, my master, how shall we do?' And he answered, 'Fear not, for they that be with us are more than they that be with them.' And Elisha prayed and said, 'Lord, I pray Thee, open his eyes that he may see.' And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man; and he saw, and behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots around about Elisha." The sermon was a strong defense of the Christian belief against the attacks of materialists and rationalists. The address greatly pleased the congregation and the excellent thought and delightful delivery of Rev. Boissier was most gratifying to the listeners. Father Boissier was very popular among his parishioners in Mauston and he will doubtless be no less popular in this city. His success previous to his acceptance of the Trinity rectory and the reception which has met with him here thus far, assures him success in his new field of labor.

GAZETTE SCOOPS CHICAGO PAPERS

Story of the Hot Springs Fire More Complete Than Chicago Papers Had It.

On Saturday the Gazette printed a full and exhaustive account of the great fire at Hot Springs, Arkansas, in its afternoon edition. The early Chicago papers which reached the city did not even know the fire was raging and later papers had but a meagre account. The Sunday papers, discussing the fire under large headlines, told no more facts than the Gazette did on Saturday night.

GENERAL OPINION OF BEVERIDGE

GUY MITCHELL WRITES OF THE INDIANA STATESMAN.

HIS STAND ON STATEHOOD Stands for the Best Good to the United States—Same as Regards Irrigation.

In spite of the prevalent idea that the dollar is ahead of all else, we do find instances where public welfare is considered by men ahead of private interests. A case in point is that of the recent statehood fight in the senate, and a radical exponent of this theory is the leader of that fight, Senator Beveridge of Indiana.

"Why," was asked the senator, "should you, a resident of the east, free of all western interests, take up a question of this kind, and make a fight to win your case, although your very life depended upon it?"

"Why?" It was simply my duty," he replied. "I was chairman of the committee on territories and we had to bring in a report and do our level best to see that report accepted. This question was simply a conflict of public policy and private interests. It had not been for private interests, the senate without a dozen votes against it. But there were private interests arrayed against, as I believe, the best public policy. I have no personal interest in the matter, but there is a line of duty which must be followed out. I believe that no private interest should be allowed to interfere with public policy. In making my first campaign for the senate, and before my re-election, I told Indians on the stump that if every man and woman in the state petitioned me to do something for Indiana, which would be a disadvantage to the United States, I would not do it, and neither would I."

Never has Mr. Beveridge's tremendous tenacity of purpose and inflexible determination to carry out his purpose amounting, almost, to stubbornness been demonstrated in greater measure than in this statehood fight. Powerful interests arrayed before him, with retaliatory threats against other measures floating about, with rumored proffers of trades, and of various manipulations, he has pursued an undeviating course and has shown the most tireless energy and the fiercest intention to succeed.

All in a matter relating mostly to the future of a section of the far southwest. Were more of this spirit evinced by eastern congressmen regarding legislation affecting the west, it would be a good thing for the country.

There should be, as he stated, no sections of the country recognized in questions of general legislation. The idea is far too prevalent that if a part of the country wants something, why it should be just as well to let it have it, especially if the proposed legislation, such for instance as land legislation, requires no money appropriation.

If congress would give the same care, scrutiny and attention to every western measure which the senator from Indiana has given to the statehood question, there would be fewer laws enacted, which, in after years, prove either futile or else the basis of such fraud and scandal, as the country is now witnessing in Oregon and other northwestern states.

The east is interested in the Oregon land frauds and the other wholesale spoils of the great area of western public lands to the extent that not only is this property beginning to be recognized as a resource of the nation, but that with our rapidly increasing population opportunities must be preserved for the sons of the citizens today to go out into the great west and make homes for themselves and rear their families. The recent report to congress of the public lands commission appointed by the president states that the operation of the present land laws has a tendency far too often to bring about land monopoly rather than to multiply small holdings by actual settlers. To such public spirited men from the east, without western affiliations, as Senator Beveridge, honest, aggressive and with a national grasp of affairs, it remains to see that this western heritage is to be considered not a local resource, but an asset of the whole people. GUY E. MITCHELL.

Official figures of the mileage of the Pennsylvania Railroad company show that it now reaches a grand aggregate of 10,558 miles. Nearly all of this mileage is double tracked, and the amount of four tracked lines is quite large, so that the total trackage of the lines of the Pennsylvania company comes up to 21,183 miles. The state of Pennsylvania has the largest shore of this immense mileage, having 3,000 miles. Ohio comes second, with 1,837 miles; Indiana third, with 1,438 miles, and New York fourth, with 813 miles. Virginia has only twelve miles. The lines east of Pittsburgh, 4,731 miles.

NEW SERIAL IS WELL THOUGHT OF

What Some of the Leading Newspapers Say of "The Rose of Normandy."

Some of the press comments of the Gazette's new serial, "A Rose of Normandy," will be interesting.

The Chicago Tribune says: "A story that stirs the blood, warms the heart and holds the interest with a firm grasp from beginning to end."

The St. Paul Dispatch says: "There is a freshness, strength and beauty about this story which invigorates one in the reading. It has the freshness of the early world in its pages, and its adventure is made real and convincing, and the reader shares in its pages and enjoys it. Mr. Wilson has written a thoroughly good story, sane and sensible and wholesome, invigorating and intensely interesting."

The St. Louis Republican says: "There is a rush of exciting incident which forbids the flagging of interest even for a moment. May therefore take rank among the most deserving novels of the day. Possesses the merits of swift action, picturesque characters, a strong love interest, a vivid setting."

The Baltimore American says: "No more entertaining character has stalked through the pages of any recent novel than that of Henri de Tonil, gentleman, soldier, courtier, gallant—the intrepid hero of countless adventures, but without the true and constant man and lover."

A STRIKING NEW SERIAL

We have arranged to publish in this paper a new story of exceptional merit, both because of its literary merit and its absorbing interest, entitled,

A Rose of Normandy

By WILLIAM R. A. WILSON

The story is a historical romance of La Salle's exploits in the Mississippi valley, with the heroic Henri de Tonti as the hero. The love story is of the kind that will appeal strongly to every reader who has experienced the sublime emotion, and the adventures are sufficiently thrilling to satisfy the most exacting demands for action. Here are two of hundreds of favorable press comments:

The St. Louis Republic says: "There is a rush of exciting incident which forbids the flagging of interest even for a moment. May therefore take rank among the most deserving novels of the day. Possesses the merits of swift action, picturesque characters, a strong love interest, a vivid setting."

The Baltimore American says: "No more entertaining character has stalked through the pages of any recent novel than that of Henri de Tonti, gentleman, soldier, courier, gallant, the intrepid hero of countless adventures, but with the true and constant man and lover."

NEWS FOR THE PLAY-GOERS

There are a great many scenes in "David Harum" which appear to people who have any sense of the ridiculous, one scene in particular is highly diverting. This scene comes in the second act. The audience has seen David sell the piano. Deacon Perkins the bawdy horse in the previous act, and it is now the Deacon is expected to drive over after his wife. The clouds darken, the timber roars and as the rain comes down in torrents the Deacon is seen belaboring the bay horse that "would stand without hitching." The horse stands still, however, and there is the Deacon wet to the skin threatening to have the law on David. The scene brings the second act to an end and on many occasions the curtain has had in answer to the applause to be raised again and again on it.

Mildred Holland.
The announcement of the appearance at the Myers Grand Opera House this evening of Mildred Holland as Catherine the Great in "The Triumph of an Empress" will be particularly welcome to the hundreds of friends of that accomplished actress in this city, as well as to those theatre goers who appreciate a serious effort in the drama.
The subject and theme of "The Triumph of an Empress" is an exalted one, and while Miss Holland does not actually follow recorded facts of history in her portrayal of the great Empress, she knows her higher and better characteristics, her devotion to the duties of state and her great maternal love. That she can adequately do this is evidenced by the following extract from the Boston Record:
"A delighted audience at the Metropolitan Theatre, New York, on Monday, February 27, 1905, witnessed the performance of 'The Triumph of an Empress' by Mildred Holland. The actress has developed her drama in an atmosphere of thoroughly Russian and illustrated with subtlety and finesse, the characteristics of the period in which it is laid. Miss Holland's conception of Catherine was a faithful delineation of that important monarch as outlined in the pen pictures of Segur, Ligne, Rousseau, Voltaire and others, weaving through the strong wool of her intolerance a tender yet powerful warp of mercy and womanliness."

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, February 27, 1865—Burglary.—The store of Davis Bros., on West Milwaukee street, was entered on Saturday night and goods, valued at about $200, stolen. Entrance to the store was gained by taking out a window in the rear of the store. There was nice discrimination in the choice of the goods and we suppose suspicion will turn in the right direction to insure the arrest of the depredators.

Belgian miners, especially at Beauraing and around Liege, are discussing the question of striking in support of their German brethren in the event of Belgian coal continuing to pour into Germany. The German coal and metal trusts are hated in Belgium, and the operators here are charged with aiding those monopolies. The outlook is disquieting, since the Belgian miners are perfectly organized and financed, and in close relations with all the other union workers in the country. They have eight deputies in parliament and are experienced in conducting general strikes.

NOT BOUND TO BUILD BRIDGE

Council by Passage of Resolution Merely Declared in Favor of Taking Vote of People.

Some misunderstanding has arisen over the resolution providing for submitting the question of a new bridge at Racine street to the voters, passed at the last council meeting. By the passage of this resolution the aldermen did not put themselves on record as favoring the project. They merely voted in favor of having the people express their wish to put the question before the citizens in a formal manner. It is stated to be the purpose of the council to construct a bridge at the foot of Racine street at a cost not to exceed $25,000, but strictly speaking the question is: "If it is the purpose, etc., are you in favor of it?" If the bridge is built it will undoubtedly cost much less than the amount mentioned. The Court street bridge cost $19,000 and one like it at Racine street would probably cost considerably more owing to the fact that approaches would have to be built, as was not the case in the instance of the first named structure. It is also thought that the river is somewhat wider at the foot of Racine street. But a narrow, or structure with only one sidewalk for pedestrians would make a considerable difference in the cost which might partly counter-balance the extra expense for approaches and a somewhat longer structure. The stipulated $25,000 is the limit and not the prescribed amount which the new bridge is to cost.

AFFAIR OF HEARTS; FISTIC ENCOUNTER

Stripped to the Waist Two Jealous Beaux Sought to Settle Differences in Prize Ring.

Green-eyed jealousy again stalked among the roller-skating knights at the Coliseum Saturday evening. After the evening's pastime had ended two who were infatuated with the same maid retired to the rear of the same main hall and prepared for a gory fistic contest that would settle once and for all the relative claims of the telegraph student and the town boy to that heart of hearts. There was a goodly crowd of spectators on hand to witness the affray and the preliminaries had all been completed when a flash over the telephone wires brought Marshal Comstock's men to the scene. The party quickly broke up upon the appearance of the police and the town boy participant escaped. The name of the telegraph school student was learned and complaints may be entered against both of them when the identity of the party of the first part is learned.

Clarence Bullock and Beloit Young Lady Hurlled From Cutter—Horse Slid Into Cellar Window.

There was a bad runaway on Court street at half-past four o'clock Saturday afternoon and Clarence Bullock and Miss Hannel of Beloit narrowly escaped with their lives. The horse was frightened by a dog which ran out and snapped at its heels near Theodore Goldin's residence, and started down the hill at a terrific clip. Nearing the intersection of Bluff street and in so doing, to turn the corner and the animal tripped, overturning the sleigh and hurled the young lady into the lower berth and the young man onto the sidewalk near the Woods flats. When spectators arrived on the scene the horse had its fore-legs through Dr. Woods' cellar window and was pinioned there, panting and groaning. The occupants of the sleigh miraculously escaped injury and the horse got off with a few scratches.

FORMER INSTRUCTOR IN BLIND SCHOOL MET TERRIBLE DEATH

Mrs. Jonathan Ross, formerly Miss H. A. Daggett, Killed in Vermont.

Particulars of the terrible death of Mrs. Jonathan Ross, formerly Miss H. A. Daggett, a teacher for ten years in the State School for the Blind, at St. Johnsbury, Vermont, on Tuesday last, have just been received by Jansville friends: It appears that she was riding in a cutter with her husband when, in approaching a railroad crossing, the horse became frightened, and at an oncoming train and getting out of the control of the driver dashed in between two of the cars. The occupants were hurled many yards with terrific force and Mrs. Ross was instantly killed. The husband broke a hip and survived the wife two days. He was a former United States senator and chief justice of the Vermont supreme court.

FIVE IN COURT FOR DRUNKENNESS

Pleaded Various Extenuating Circumstances This Morning—"Just His Periodical" for One.

When Martin Gagen was called before the court this morning to answer to the charge of drunkenness he offered the plea that being sick and about to have an operation performed he thought a little "courage" would do him good—but not having a drink for so long, it knocked him out. Martin returned to Jansville on Friday. After hearing his story the court sentenced him to five days in jail with a fine of $3 and costs or five additional days and promised him that the next time he appeared he would get the limit—ninety days. Charles Goldmaker came here Friday to get a job in the country and got drunk in anticipation thereof. He was fined $2 and costs. The same fine was imposed on Frank McDowell, who testified that he was only out on one of his "periodicals." Frank Thorn said: "I drink occasionally but I never thought I would see the day when it would get the start of me. I come from Whitewater and have been unwell." "Two dollars and costs," said the court. One other man there was—a first offender—who "thought enough of his wife and family to beg that his name be not recorded in the newspaper." He said the court in a manly way. "Yes, I had a little too much," and took his punishment without whimpering.

DID GREAT WORK IN CHICAGO MEET

Myers Third in Half Mile and Helps Waller Win Quarter Mile Saturday Night.

Besides winning third place in the half-mile race from Lightbody's team-mate in the Chicago-Wisconsin university indoor track meet in Chicago Saturday night, Myers of this city also made it possible for Waller to take the laurels in the 440-yard dash. The half-mile race was won from Breitkreutz by Lightbody of Chicago in 2:12 2-5, a second and two-fifths slower than Myers ran in the try-out at Madison. In the quarter-mile Waller of Wisconsin beat out the victor of Chicago by a few feet. The victory of the Wisconsin athlete was made possible only by the keen pace set by his team-mate, Myers, the race being run in the pursuit fashion. The meet as a whole was one-sided, Chicago winning by a total score of 48 against Wisconsin's 23. Lightbody gained the first place honors, each taking two first places; Lightbody, the mile and half-mile from Kiesel and Breitkreutz, respectively, and Waller the quarter-mile and fifty-yard dash from Groman and Barker, respectively. One world's record was tied and three University of Chicago "gym" records were broken. Catlin of Chicago again ran the fifty-yard high hurdles in 0:07 flat. Dulany of Wisconsin jumped 5 feet 7 1/2 inches, breaking the former mark of three-quarters of an inch. Lyon of Chicago clipped fifteen seconds off the two-mile mark, while four-fifths of a second was taken from the 440-yard record.

MISS HOLLAND AND COMPANY ARE HERE

Charming Little Woman Who Is To Portray Catherine The Great, Tells of Experiences.

Miss Mildred Holland and her company, which will appear here this evening in her latest romantic drama, entitled "The Triumph of an Emperess," arrived this morning from Chicago. Miss Holland was recently in Russia where she spent most of her time studying the people and their ways and when seen by a representative of the Gazette, spoke very entertainingly of her trip. She said: "I had the pleasure of meeting the czar while visiting the palace at Peterhof, and I found him a very pleasant man to meet and in the course of our conversation he stated that he was pleased to know I was about to portray the character of Catherine the Great, one of the greatest rulers that has ever lived, and having read the manuscript, he knew that the production would make of her an ideal personage and would add much to the real truth of the woman who has been greatly maligned by the foreign writers of Russian history. The czar also issued me a permit to visit all the libraries and museums wherein I might obtain information to perfect my researches." Miss Holland is a very charming little person and she should be greeted by an enthusiastic audience. The reports from every part of the country are that she has an excellent production.

Evansville, Feb. 27.—At the afternoon session of the Local Farmers' institute Saturday the former officers were re-elected, as follows: President—W. W. Gillies.

It was decided that an institute be held next year at a time corresponding to the date of the 1905 institute. The variety grown was purebred and known as "Green's Yellow Dent." Purebred corn is now coming to the front as well as are purebred cattle. Great interest was shown in the university. A General Sporting News

Here, There, Everywhere, In Sport

W. G. Brokaw's Challenger Is America's Fastest Auto Boat—Athletics at University of Wisconsin—Severe Cold Kills Game Birds.

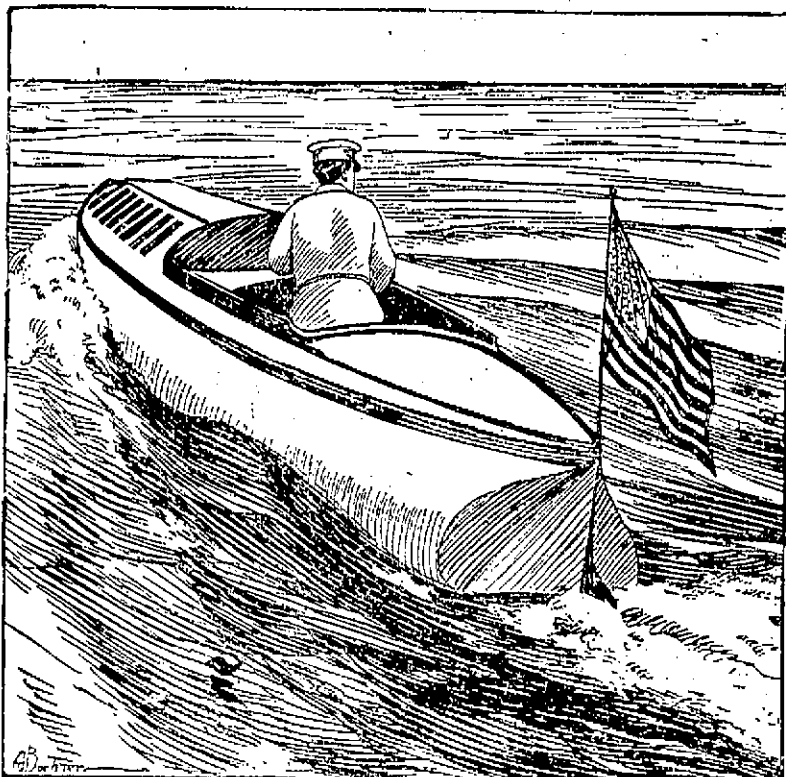

Auto boating is rapidly becoming a most popular sport, and the devotees of the recently found pastime have been enjoying themselves to the limit of late on Lake Worth at Palm Beach, Fla., that winter paradise for the northern leisure class.

W. Gould Brokaw's swift craft, the Challenger of New York, has been demonstrating that it is the fastest auto boat in American waters by successively reducing the record for a mile.

Operated by Proctor Smith, the boat went a mile in 2:04 1/5 with the wind and on the run back, against the wind, made the distance in 2:05 4/5. Later in another essay the boat went in 2:02. The speed which the new craft attains is directly comparable to that reached by the automobile racing machines on land. The boats are considerably lighter, but the resistance caused by the water necessarily retards the boat more than does the opposition afforded by the air to the cars. The auto boats are clean, trim looking craft, built only for speed.

Wisconsin Athletics.

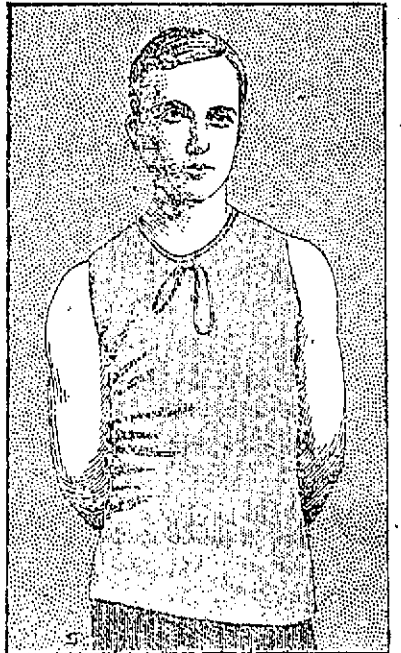

New coaches, new policies and new athletes are expected to work wonders with the athletic situation at the University of Wisconsin. The teams, which have been on the down grade for several seasons, are expected to show winning form again, and before long it is hoped that the old prestige of the cardinal will be restored.

James Temple, who is to coach the track men this spring, is one of the factors upon whom the optimists of the rooster's fraternity of the institution are counting to bring this renaissance about. He is to have entire charge of the track squad, conditioning the men and overseeing their training in every particular. Temple formerly worked in this capacity at West Point. The superb physical condition of the cadets teams is said to have been due in a large measure to his efforts, and if he can live up to his reputation, followers of Wisconsin will have no reason to complain.

Baxter G. Vreeland.

One of Temple's new pupils is Baxter G. Vreeland. He is a star sprinter and is credited with a record of 9.45 seconds for 100 yards. This mark was made in Colorado. Vreeland hails from Denver and only entered Wisconsin this year.

The new athlete is built something on the lines of Maybury, the great dash man, who carried Wisconsin colors to the front a few years ago. If the new man fails to come up to expectations there will be a lot of disappointed rooters.

Game Perishes in Illinois.

It is feared that thousands of game birds have perished throughout Illinois as the result of the recent cold wave. The coat of ice upon the frozen ground has prevented quail, prairie chickens and other birds from securing food. In addition, there has been a heavy fall of snow covering the ice to a depth of from five to eight inches and still further increasing the difficulties of wild animals in obtaining subsistence. Hunters are greatly concerned over the fate of the birds and rabbits.

Nap Cohen, one of the fish commissioners for Illinois, states that the board is compiling the annual report and that it will soon be made public. One of the interesting features is a paragraph concerning the enemies of the game fish and the fact that permits are now being issued by the board to well organized hunting and fishing clubs to drag or seine any stream in Illinois for dogfish, gar or any other species that wages war upon the game fish.

One fisherman near Havana, Ill., last month secured 35,000 pounds of gar. The gar is the most destructive enemy of the game fish and does more injury than all the illegal fishing combined. The permit requires that all game fish caught with the gar or dogfish must be thrown back into the water, and, in addition, the prosecution of the warfare must be under the supervision of a fish warden.

Tod Sloane.

Through his action in signing to ride for Ed Corrigan, Tod Sloane has caused a decided turf sensation. Sloane it was who practically revolutionized English riding methods.

Until Sloane's invasion of the English turf he was a bold man who would intimate to an Englishman that an American jockey could ride quite as well as his English brother. If he as-

The Great Claude.

M. J. Daly's Derby Winner and His Career—Much Traveled Runner.

One horse that will always occupy a niche in turf history is M. J. Daly's good performer, Claude. The American turf has had many race idols, but not one has earned a more unique record than Claude, the pride of San Francisco patrons of the turf.

There have been "iron" horses from time to time and others that have won distinction for their wonderful campaigning ability, such as old Logan.

CLAUDE, WINNER OF FOUR DERBIES.

and still others that have gained fame for their big winnings, such as Domino, who won $208,800 during his short career on the turf. Kingston was another big winner, taking down $142,552 in purses and stakes. The California horse Sir Walter, by Midlothian, succeeded in winning a trifling less than $130,000. Last year Delhi, Ort Welles, Stalwart and Beldame won big amounts, running from $30,000 to $75,000, while in 1903 Africander, Waterbury, Hamburg Belle, Highball and Irish Lad won fortunes for their owners.

Unfortunately Claude was owned by a poor man, and he never had any rich stake engagements in the east. Besides, the two-year-old form of Claude did not warrant any such extravagance as making stake engagements. As a matter of fact, Claude was as very ordinary two-year-old, which doubtless had a marked tendency to keep down his winnings, as the richest stakes are for two-year-olds.

Claude's claim to fame does not rest on the amount of money that he has won, but to his phenomenal campaigns during three seasons. The son of Lisak has been shipped across the continent and from track to track with a frequency possibly without parallel in the history of the American turf. During his short career he has won more stakes than any other horse that ever raced in America in the given time. Few horses if any have won on so many different tracks and so widely scattered. Claude has not been "bald" and has won on all kinds of tracks, at all distances and with very heavy impost.

Claude has captured four important Derbies.

He has won races on twelve different tracks.

His percentage of wins to starts is 31.53.

He has traveled over 25,000 miles.

He has to his credit fifteen stake races.

He has won $61,880 in stakes and purses.

Claude's Derby record is as follows:

BASEBALL'S INFLUENCE.

National Game the Real Cause of Wide Athletic Development.

Baseball is the father or forerunner of athletic sports in the United States, which were practically unknown to this country before the civil war. Forty years ago it was a discredit for a man to be seen with any kind of athletic implement, but now it is a badge of honor. Baseball was the spark that brought into action that natural, inborn Anglo-Saxon love of all kinds of athletic sports, and today the youth and young men of the United States can hold their own with the leading athletes of the world. There is today no greater moral and uplifting force influencing the youth of this country than athletics when kept within reasonable bounds.

Wellington said that "the battle of Waterloo was won on the cricket fields of England," and President Roosevelt is credited with a somewhat similar statement that "the battle of San Juan Hill was won on the baseball and football fields of America."

The spirit of baseball has permeated into every part of our strenuous life; it exists in all business enterprises; it is seen in our president, in the cabinet, in congress, in the pulpit, in the counting house and factory, and if renewed energy is sought, fresh enthusiasm or inspiration required in any of these places it can always be aroused by the utterance of these two well understood words, "Play ball."

Jim Bug Was Frightened

"The police are after you!" cried Dooty to Jim Bug.

"What for?" asked Jim Bug.

"They say you climbed the fence around Farmer Jones' orchard and bit a piece out of one of his apples."

"Oh, my!" cried Jim Bug. "I am discovered! What will they do with me?"

Then he began to run for his home. When he finally reached the house he rushed in out of breath.

"Oh, ma," he cried, "what am I to do? The police are after me for taking a bite out of one of Mr. Jones' apples."

"Hide in the cellar under the wash-tub!" exclaimed his mother.

So down into the cellar Jim Bug hurried and crawled under the wash-tub. He kept just as quiet as he could be.

HE BEGAN TO RUN FOR HIS HOME.

cause he expected a big fat policeman would come along at any moment and carry him off to jail.

Presently he heard his mother coming down the stairs.

"It's all right, Jimmie; it's all right!" she cried. "They are not coming to do anything with you."

"How do you know, ma?" he asked.

"Caterpillar has just been here and told me," she replied. "They were going to punish you, but changed their minds."

"Why, ma?"

"Because they found that you had only bitten a crab apple. They thought that would make you very sick and that would be punishment enough for you."

"I do feel rather sick under my shirt," said Jim.

"Well, I'll give you a dose of ginger and you'll be well in a little while," said his mother.

"That was the greatest scare I ever had in my life," said Jim. "I guess I won't eat any more apples that are not mine."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE Frog Makes Love to the Moon

The frog fell in love with the moon and made up his mind that he would ask her to marry him. He put on his best clothes, and when night came and the moon rose high in the sky he sat down beneath a tree and began to creek out his story of love. Just as he reached the point where he was going to ask the moon to marry him she hid behind a cloud.

When she reappeared he began his courtship all over again; but, just as he got to the point of proposing, away she went behind another cloud. Then he tried a third time and a fourth time, but whenever he was ready to "pop the question" the moon disappeared.

He was a very persistent fellow, however, and at last he was successful in asking her the very important question. He smiled his sweetest and spoke in his tenderest, most loving tones.

"Will you, oh, will you, dear moon, will you be?"

And before he could say "mine" the moon had disappeared behind a hill, and the poor, foolish frog shed a few frog tears and went home. He is a bachelor yet if he has waited to marry the moon.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE MINORITY

By FREDERICK TREVOR HILL
Author of "The Case and Exceptions," Etc.

(Copyright, 1902, by Frederick A. Stokes & Co.)

Circles, curves and angles, crossing and recrossing one another, intertwining, separating, ending to begin anew—forming a maze whose secret was a young girl's heart.

"What's the reason you can't accept that power?"

Mr. Trundell's voice had the bullying tone likely to silence a timid man before a crowded room.

"What's the reason you can't accept it?" he repeated. "Mr. Harlan gave me this proxy when he was called away to Duluth. What more do you want?"

"There's another proxy revoking this, offered by Mr. Maddox," replied the teller, lowering his voice.

Mr. Trundell snatched the paper held out to him, and muttered something which made the waiting stockholders strain their ears.

Maddox pushed his way to the table where Trundell and the election official were talking.

"I call your attention, Mr. Teller," he remarked, calmly, "to the fact that my proxy is dated yesterday, and supersedes any of previous date," he added, quietly, as he sat down.

Mr. Trundell glanced angrily at the speaker and examined the papers more closely. Suddenly he whipped out a fountain pen and rapidly inserted a date.

"What are you doing, there?"

Maddox sprang to his feet and reached for the paper, but Trundell pulled it away.

"I'm filling in a blank date; as I've a right to do, Mr. Lawyer. Harlan's daughter didn't take her proxy, so I've done it for her. The date's to-day."

"I demand that that power be rejected," exclaimed Maddox. "You've seen him insert the date, which is enough to invalidate the instrument, but it is expressly revoked by my proxy, which makes it invalid no matter what the date."

"I don't propose to take the law from you as to that," snapped Mr. Trundell. "The tellers have no right to pass upon the validity of proxies. If these shares decide the election, the courts will have to determine who's elected."

"And in the mean time you hold over, eh?"

"Right you are for once, Maddox."

Mr. Trundell smiled sneeringly as he gave the answer.

"Thanks for informing me of your cheerful intentions before the polls have closed," retorted Dave, as he moved toward the door.

"Miss Harlan!" he called. "Will you step here a moment?"

The room was hushed to breathless silence as Leslie Harlan entered. Maddox whispered a few words in her ear, and then moved to the table, at which Leslie seated herself with quiet self-possession.

"We are very sorry to trouble you, Miss Harlan," began the teller.

"Louder!" shouted some one in the back of the room. Maddox could not repress a smile, but he shook his head at the eager little audience.

"But there is some question about the proxies offered in your name," continued the official, "and as we cannot decide between conflicting powers, it has been thought better, in order that there may be no mistake, to let you say yourself which you confirm—the one held by Mr. Maddox or this offered by Mr. Trundell."

Leslie's eyes followed the speaker's gesture as he indicated Mr. Trundell.

"I am advised that my presence revokes both," she answered gravely. "I will therefore vote in person. I hope you won't be offended?" she added, turning to Maddox smilingly.

"Your right, lady!—Never lit any man go into the booth 'f ye!"

Leslie turned and saw Pat Mullin's face shining with excitement and approval.

"The pencils purred busily for 15 minutes after the polls closed, but no one left the room, and when the teller rose to announce the result, Chairman Harlan had no need to rap for order."

"We announce the election of the ticket headed by Mr. John Kennard, by 9,873 votes."

"Bogorra, that's me three!—Didn't I tell ye, lady? Do your own votin'!"—Hurroo for John Kennard!—Praise be, he'll yet live to—"

But Mr. Mullin's enthusiasm was repressed long enough to allow the meeting to adjourn with due decorum.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Kennard's hansom rolled and jolted down upper Broadway, one rubber-tired wheel in the groove of the car-rail, and the other teetering on the fringe of granite paving. With a series of bumps, plunges, and hops it hurried across Long Acre's tangle of tracks, slewed itself onto the asphalt triangle, and slipped quietly along like a ship behind a breakerwater after weathering the storm. Beyond, as far as the eye could reach, stretched the great highway of the city—a huge artery throbbing with feverish, exhausting movement in response to the fluttered heart-beat of a Titan—a mighty stream flowing rapidly and ceaselessly, with cross currents forming and disappearing at every fresh impulse.

"I suppose it's been going on just like this all the time I've been away?"

Kennard asked the question musingly, and Maddox did not answer until his companion turned to him inquiringly.

"Yes," he assented smilingly; "I don't believe it ever stops."

Kennard leaned back on the cushions wearily.

"That's the hopeless side of it all," he murmured, as though talking to himself. "It never stops—it never stops. All this din and scrambling haste must go on, day in and out, for endless days and nights. That's what crushes."

He paused and watched the restless, nervous scene before him with absorbed attention.

"It may sound ridiculous to you, Dave," he continued after a moment, "but this whole city is as foreign to me to-day as though I'd been out of the country for a matter of years, instead of in an uptown hospital for a matter of weeks."

Maddox nodded comprehendingly.

"Has the jolting bothered you much, old man?" he asked anxiously.

"Not very much. I think the city will come back to me, and I to it more easily this way. To be shaken before taken, you know. Perhaps this is just what I need to make me feel at home again, for I'm sadly out of my bearings. Either I'm a sick man looking at things with a sick man's eyes, or else I'm seeing them as they really are for the first time. Certainly I never felt until to-day the awfulness of this city. It's terrifying, Dave, it's positively terrifying in the ceaseless grinding of its wheels and the heedless torrent of its grist. There's something horrible in the cold, hard, cruel mechanism of it all."

"Don't try to familiarize yourself too rapidly. If my advice had been followed, you wouldn't be down here at all to-day."

"It won't do me any harm. As a matter of fact, I ought to have come before. The new board of directors should get to work at the earliest possible moment."

"I like that! Just as though we hadn't been as busy as bees for the past month or more. Isn't the strike settled and everything running smoothly again? And yet the president sits in his hansom cab and says it's time for the new board to get to work! There's egotism for you!"

"You've done splendidly, I admit it. But I don't want your work to go for nothing. You remember what we were talking of the other night?"

"You mean about getting rid of Wall Street?"

"Yes."

"Well?"

"We mustn't postpone that move. The Confederated isn't overcapitalized to-day. I don't know why, unless it was part of Trundell, Croymond & Co.'s scheme to wait until they had things completely in their hands before they increased the stock to suit their own convenience. However, the business can now earn in the worst times a reasonable dividend on its capital. That being so, how long will it be before the speculators get control of the company and multiply the stock until it won't be able to earn a decent return in the best of years, and at other times will have to make good its losses by all kinds of dangerous financialing?"

Maddox shrugged his shoulders.

"Not very long," he admitted. "The temptation to convert a hundred dollar share into two, three or four shares and then peddle them off on an unsuspecting public, is too much for the average financial conscience."

"Well, I'm not worrying about the unsuspecting public which dabbles in Wall Street. At least, it's not my chief concern. I'm thinking about the employees at whose expense this game of never-lasting is always played sooner or later; and incidentally I'm thinking of ourselves. There isn't much incentive in working for a gang of speculators who'll turn us out at the very next election. Whatever we do will be of doubtful value if it's undone in a year."

"Isn't that just what I said the other night?"

"Yes, but you didn't point out the remedy."

"I don't know any, except control of the stock."

"Then it's high time the directors considered the ways and means of doing that. I believe there are plenty of people who are ready and willing to support a decent, honest policy—not as a matter of philanthropy, but as good business—and that they can be reached directly or indirectly."

you think so?"

"Ye-es," assented Maddox, hesitating; "but—"

"Now don't let us have any 'buts,' Dave. You've given me a good mental send-off, and I'm gathering momentum all the time. Clear the track, don't obstruct it! But seriously, this thing must be done or we'll be in the hands of the financial thimble-riggers within a twelvemonth. Then we'll have another reorganization and more robbery: It's an endless chain, and I, for one, don't propose to stand by and see the first link forged. There's more at stake here than the future of this one corporation. Nobody can be blind to the economic conditions as they exist to-day, and only the fools want to shut their eyes. You can't have a revolution in business methods such as we have had in the past ten years and leave the labor question untouched. If it is ignored or handled by men of the Trundell-Croymond type, it will become a political issue, just as sure as we live."

Maddox nodded at the emphatic words.

"A mighty dangerous issue," was his only comment.

"Dangerous and unnecessary. When I first thought about this combination—consolidation tendency, Dave," Kennard went on, "I was opposed to it heart and soul. But what I have learned has shown me more possibilities for good than for evil in this thing. Between the worst form of corporate tyranny and the secret, private greed of individuals, I would choose the former. A little sweat-shop is easier to hide than a big corporation."

Maddox nodded again.

"But you must have a policy of some kind," he suggested, "and it mustn't be too revolutionary."

SEEKS TO SLAY WHOLE FAMILY

Former Missouri Convict Is Foiled in Attempt in Iowa.

Ottumwa, Iowa, Feb. 27.—Wild with anger because his family threatened to leave him, John Johnson, an ex-convict, attempted a wholesale murder here. He struck his wife over the head with a baseball bat, inflicting a wound which may prove fatal. Her infant granddaughter, whom she was holding at the time, fell against the stove and was badly burned.

Johnson would have finished his bloody work had it not been for his daughter, Mrs. Clara Bond, who intervened. She was severely beaten by the frenzied man. Johnson was pardoned from the Missouri penitentiary in December last by Governor Dockery after serving ten years of a life sentence for assault to kill and criminal assault committed in Mercer County.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS

The man who hesitates, whose eye is dull, whose step is slow, whose mind is sluggish, whose hands tremble, is not the man whom an employer seeks. It is the bright man, the man with the clear eyes and brain, the active man, full of energy, life and vigor, whose very manner and presence breeds success that is sought by and snapped up as soon as seen, and it seems almost pitiful that the first class, victims of excess of some sort, should exist when it needs but a thorough course of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to round them in to the old-time feeling of physical, intellectual and manly vigor again.

Mr. Fred Hoyt of No. 724 6th Ave., New Brighton, Pa., Says:

"I used to have a hand so steady I could write the Lord's prayer on a twenty-five cent piece—then as a result of overwork and overstrain my eyes gave out and my hands and nerves generally became trembly. I was restless and could not sleep. I certainly was in bad shape and lost my ability to write—could just scrawl. I heard of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and got some and they took hold immediately. I began to sleep—gain strength—my nerves grew steady—and my eyesight improved steadily. Today I feel finely and can again write as well as ever, and that means a very steady nerve." 50c a box at dealers or A. W. Chase Medicine Company, Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. Dyspepsia of Women

ABSOLUTELY NEEDLESS AGONY

Caused by Uterine Disorders and Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A great many women suffer with a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not seem to yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms seem to be similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines universally prescribed do not seem to restore the patient's normal condition.

Mrs. M. Wright

Mrs. Pinkham claims that there is a kind of dyspepsia that is caused by a derangement of the female organism, and which, while it causes a disturbance similar to ordinary indigestion, cannot be relieved without a medicine which not only acts as a stomach tonic, but has peculiar uterine-tonic effects also.

As proof of this theory we call attention to the case of Mrs. Maggie Wright, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was completely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after everything else had failed. She writes:

"For two years I suffered with dyspepsia which so degenerated my entire system that I was unable to attend to my daily duties. I felt weak and nervous, and nothing that I ate tasted good and it caused a disturbance in my stomach. I tried different dyspepsia cures, but nothing seemed to help me. I was advised to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and was happily surprised to find that it acted like a fine tonic, and in a few days I began to enjoy and properly digest my food. My recovery was rapid, and in five weeks I was a well woman. I have recommended it to many suffering women."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement, or has such a record of cures of female troubles, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Home Health Club

By DAVID H. REEDER, Ph.D., M.D.
Lecturer.

Recently I was asked by one who had been a sufferer for many years, to give a lecture on the subject of canker sores, stating in her request that she did not understand why she was troubled with them. She said her digestion was fine, and that she was in perfect health, with the exception of canker sores, and of terrible vomiting spells which last sometimes for two or three days. It seems inconceivable to me that anyone can consider his digestion as being perfect when they are troubled with canker sores in the mouth.

As a rule, canker of the mouth is confined to children, and in acute cases is indicative of danger; but any person of scrupulous tendency, or anyone whose nutrition is impoverished, and with consequent enfeeblement of the constitution, may be liable to these distressing sores. In their nature, canker sores in the mouth are not unlike ulcers, yet the symptoms may be radically different. Especially is this the case with children, for they do not always know how to describe their sufferings. These cankers sometimes, yes, quite often, become manifest in the throat, and are then termed "canker sore throat."

The signs to look for where there are sores in the mouth are about as follows: The gums become red, and they, as well as the cheeks, are swollen to a greater or less extent; and inside the mouth the gray ulcers make their appearance.

In severe or fatal cases they extend under the old style of medical treatment, and become ashy and then brown in color; the breath becomes very offensive; the appetite falls, and with its failure strength is rapidly exhausted. Sometimes the whole cheek and roof of the mouth, or even the tongue, are involved. When it is in the cheeks, the outside becomes hard and swollen, while the inside presents a foul, profusely discharging ulcer. At first, the ulcer is very painful and tender, but later becomes soft and sloughs away. One of the serious difficulties to be encountered in this condition, especially in children, lies in the fact that after the canker begins to slough and discharge profusely, there is little or no pain, and the child will make no complaint until the case is almost a hopeless one before it is discovered. Hoies may sometimes be eaten through the flesh, and it would then at once be called cancer, and incurable.

The reason there is little or no suffering is that the poisonous discharge so blunts the sensibilities, causing stupor, that the sensory nerves are unable to apprise the brain of the danger. Prompt and energetic measures must then be adopted, or death will speedily follow.

When treating such cases personally I use a certain compound of vegetable extract, directly to the parts, and then proceed with the bodily nourishment, but as the compound is very expensive, and not very easily obtainable, I recommend the next best thing, which I have also personally used in many cases.

First, there should be made what is commonly called a swab, a soft cloth or antiseptic cotton wound around the end of a small stick. The stick should be about the size of a common lead pencil, or even smaller. To the end of this securely fasten a bit of clean, soft cotton rag, winding it around carefully so as to not leave any of the ends of the stick exposed that might hurt the sore spots. Now prepare a wash of warm, soft water, to which has been added enough acetic acid to make it slightly sour to the taste. Carefully wash out the mouth with this preparation, using care to see that each portion of the sore places has been thoroughly treated. After all this has been carefully attended to, there will be a decided feeling of comfort to the sufferer, but the method of treatment does not end here.

The root of the disease may be reached and the cause removed. In order to do this effectually, the entire system must be revitalized. How best to accomplish this is no longer a serious question to a majority of the readers of this department. But of course new members are joining the club daily, even hourly, and all of these are yet to be instructed, and, at the same time, many of those who have read all of the preceding lectures, often write to me for more explicit instructions.

I will, therefore, describe the method of treatment recently used under my direction in a severe case with most excellent results. The sufferer was thin in flesh; the complexion was pale, rather sallow; circulation not good; constipation very persistent.

The instructions given in the lecture on constipation and piles was first to be carried out, during which time there should be given a soapy blanket emollient twice per week for two weeks, and then once every week for two weeks, with special instructions regarding the abundant use of oil and thorough manipulation of the muscles and abdomen one or two nights per week. A glass of hot water, with the juice of half a lemon (without sugar) was to be taken daily on arising from bed in the morning, half an hour before dinner, and half an hour before supper, and again at bedtime. No tea or coffee or other liquid at meal times, but all the water that was wanted after meal times. Every mouthful of food was to be masticated thoroughly, even if the mouth was sore.

The vital forces cannot be expected to repair injured tissues without the material with which to do the work is properly prepared. Properly eaten, a generous diet will be assimilated; therefore it was prescribed. As almond nuts are one of the most fattening foods known, they, with choice layer raisins, were advised as dessert. The nut meats must be scalded and the woody skins taken off. They are then parched or slightly browned, and a little salt sprinkled over them. This makes them delicious for most people. The raisins have the effect of enriching the blood; but if a person can more conveniently secure sweet, fresh grape juice, it is just as good. The instructions were followed with most satisfactory results, and I feel satisfied that a similar treatment in any case of the kind will prove equally satisfactory.

CLUB NOTES.

Logan, Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind.—Dear Sir: I am greatly interested in your lectures, and have followed many of your directions in many ways, with great benefit. I wish to tell you for the benefit of others how I cured myself of la grippe with dry heat, as I am alone, and could not use moist heat. I noticed when I sat with my shoulders to the heat of the stove that I stopped shivering. I had a high fever, but took three flatirons to bed and put one at my feet, one between my shoulders, and held one against my chest. I was very flighty, but stuck to the irons, and about midnight I broke out with profuse perspiration, and then went to sleep to awake in the morning comparatively well, but of course, very weak. A friend tells me that her physician said it is dangerous to heat the spine in the way I did, as it overheats the spinal cord. Will you kindly tell me if it is unsafe to use heat in that way? The irons were so hot I could not let them touch me, although well wrapped. If this is a good way to cure la grippe or a cold, I would be thankful to be assured of it, and it might help some one else who has no one to care for them in such an emergency. Your friend and well wisher, Mrs. G. P.

If you had placed a cloth wrung out of hot water between the hot iron and the spinal column, there would have been no danger of injury. There was very little as it was, but sufficient to justify me in advising you not to use it in that way again. It is better to keep the entire system in strong, healthy condition by using care in the diet, and by eliminating waste and poisonous matter from the system by increasing the activity of the organs of elimination and thus avoid all attacks of that kind in the future.

Stillman, Dr. David H. Reeder, Laporte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: Please tell me what, in your opinion, is the value of the following remedy for the cure of epilepsy. I have known it to prevent a certain person who was troubled with epilepsy from having the spells, while its use was continued. From what I know of the remedy, I believe it is better to begin its use in very moderate doses, increasing gradually to the quantity given. The remedy is as follows: Black cohosh root.....two ounces Valerian root.....one ounce Birth root.....two ounces Beaver castor.....one and one-half ounces Cedar oil.....one-quarter ounce Fourth-proof brandy or alcohol.....one quart

In the case I had reference to, best whisky was substituted in place of the brandy or alcohol. Dose: One teaspoonful, before each meal. Eat lightly. It is best to let the medicine stand two or three days before using. Head cool, feet warm. Would very much like to know your opinion of the merits of this remedy. Very truly yours, Record No. 10,412.

According to a recent decision, the sale of such a remedy as the above formula indicates would be prohibited by the government, unless the dealer had a license to sell liquors. The mixture contains about 80 per cent. of alcohol or brandy, and therefore should not be used; although the quantity prescribed is small, yet I always advise against remedies that are liable to cause more trouble than they cure. What the remedy would do without the alcohol or brandy would probably be better than with it. I have known men who would pretend to have epilepsy in order to have a remedy like that prescribed. Epilepsy can usually be cured by the Home Health club methods, which are much safer.

Landlords and Tenants.

For some reason which probably never will be fathomed, landlords will spend both time and money recklessly for new tenants and leave the steady-going, prompt-paying and easy-going old ones to look out for themselves. Scores of times I have known them to refuse the smallest request of the best of tenants and put the place in perfect condition for untried new ones. That is an exasperating feature of hired homes, and is a common cause of driving families to a change, I imagine. We all like fresh paint and paper, as we like our carpets cleaned and our furniture polished, and the landlord is expected to feel sufficient interest in his property to desire to keep it in first-class condition.—Indianapolis Tribune.
